

ANIMAL WELFARE POLICY

In Colombina, sustainability is conceived from its Business Objective, understanding that to be sustainable it is necessary to create transparent relationships of trust and mutual development with all stakeholders.

Colombina recognizes the importance of ensuring compliance with the principles of animal welfare throughout its value chain, which is why it motivates and commits its raw material suppliers to comply with these principles in their production chains and guarantee that they:

- Avoid conditions that generate hunger and thirst for animals, guaranteeing the availability of food and water.
- Provide comfort with an appropriate environment for their development.
- Facilitate care for pain, injury and illness, for prevention or diagnosis, and provide rapid treatment to animals.
- Generate freedom to express normal behavior, provide sufficient space, and facilities and appropriate company, according to each animal species.
- Ensure conditions and treatments that avoid the physical and mental suffering of animals.

Therefore, Colombina is committed to:

- Extend to all its suppliers of raw materials the importance of compliance with the Sustainability standards and its animal welfare policy.
- Bearing in mind that the Sauces and Preserves business has the largest participation in the use of eggs for Colombina, by the year 2027, La Constancia brands will be supplied exclusively with cage-free eggs for the manufacture of their products.

Our progress in 2022 has enabled us to have 30% of the eggs used in the production of products under the La Constancia brand be Cage-Free.

- Promote training and sensitization of suppliers of raw materials to extend the recommended practices to their internal processes and their value chain.

Finally, Colombina S.A. declares that it does not carry out, nor commission to third parties, tests on animals with any of its finished products.
